I'm going to ask everybody to forgive the way I may go about things. You have to understand that Thomas modley wrote some vectors so I guess this is how it's done from the heart.

Lately I've been dealing with some issues and it's become difficult with the way people understand me when they look at me. So I'm going to try to break it down for you why I have what I have in question. The reason I get to write on the letterhead like this is based upon my judgment. We had an issue that still exist today and that's accountability. We have technology that can be quickly implemented in a manner that prescribes a cure to some of the issues in our daily lives. Motorola has live stream body cams that can be implemented through a software acquisition allowing the law enforcement agencies to be monitored in real time by legal counsel to prevent any mishaps or to minimize the mishaps and it seems to be the hardest thing to get done. The reduction in cost is so great we can't even calculate but for Milwaukee Wisconsin it cost 30 million to have the whole city capable of having Wi-Fi. The body cam by Motorola is roughly $400 we can force the law enforcement officer as an individual to invest in to this or offer them an administrative instruction 71. That helps keep the cost down for us.

Moving on to the second issue, immigration, we're having a lot of media complaints about immigration and it doesn't seem to be explained to We the People properly. We have plenty of agriculture jobs picking strawberries and lettuce and mixed vegetables. We cannot get a thousand kids straight out of high school to do these jobs. I can get a thousand high school students or straight out of high school to get into a field of agriculture through the growth of marijuana which solves your immigration issue but only brings the issue of smell and complaints from your local community. My issue is that smell does not enter trespassing law but due to business relations priorly established through years of business, I'm unable to get past these complaints. So it's back to imported labor.

And then my third issue, is that when we look at the facts at the shutdown on March 13th 2020, Donald Trump signed the proclamation to a number of less than 1650 individuals who were sick with a seasonal flu. But at the same time we were having over 100,000 dying of a commodity obtained within the jurisdiction of our country.

The fourth issue stems from getting to approximate cause. If strict liability is the law prescribed to protect We the People from dangerous commodities obtained within our jurisdiction, why has this not been implemented or prescribed? If 40% of your nation's violence stems from the criminalization of this commodity, why not regulate it? As a chaplain my question is always been to these individuals suffering from losses of loved ones, if there was a potency to that commodity that took your loved ones life, do you believe they would still be here today?
